What's New In?

Help your customers click your way to success by using the new "Set SendTo" utility! Set SendTo lets you create lists of favorite folders. Clicking your favorite folders in the SendTo menu opens your most frequently used folders immediately. SendTo is designed to save you time by letting you create a list of favorite folders for "SendTo". You can create and delete lists of favorite folders at will. You can also backup or restore any existing list or folder. When you right-click an object in Photoshop Elements and then choose "SendTo...", you are presented with a dialog that allows you to create a new list. You can create as many different lists as you like. NOTE: Don't forget to uncheck the "Create a new list of favorite folders each time" option. When you create a new list of favorite folders, Photoshop Elements creates a new folder for the list you just created. If you want to create a new folder and then add items to your list, you can do that as well. All new folders in your lists are automatically created with a blank name in the "New folder" field in the SendTo dialog. When you save a list, Photoshop Elements creates a new file with the same name in the "SendTo" Folder. By default, the file extension is.tmp. When you are saving a list, you can use the name that you want to, or choose the name before you save it. When you are done with a list of favorite folders, just delete it. Deleting a list of favorite folders will not delete the files you create in the lists. The files are in a.tmp format until you delete the list of favorite folders. You can also use this tool to restore a list of favorite folders from a previous version. Just copy the.tmp file that you want to use to its original location.
